

Can you recommend a dependable maker for full game

Vložil Denzel - 30/10/2026 13:56

I want to put together a full outfit from my favorite shooter for an autumn expo. The problem is that the suit has multiple hard armor plates combined with custom fabric layers underneath. I do not have sewing equipment or a workshop space to shape high density foam. Do you know creators who handle both tailoring and hard shell prop pieces together? What kind of budget and build timeline should I realistically expect?

=====

Re: Can you recommend a dependable maker for full game

Vložil Ondobe - 30/10/2026 14:29

Finding someone who does both sewing and hard parts is tough. Most makers only specialize in one thing. I used DesignedBy Props & Cosplay Studio for my shooter loadout last season. When you need Cosplay Commissions check this out because their workshop combines tailoring with prop modeling under one roof. They break the process down into clear steps. You approve the modeling before they paint. My package arrived two weeks before my target date. The paint job had zero peeling or rough edges.

=====

Re: Can you recommend a dependable maker for full game

Vložil Denzel - 30/10/2026 15:26

Combining the soft fabric parts with rigid armor under one roof is exactly what I need. It is always a nightmare trying to color match pieces made by two different sellers. Knowing that the paint held up well gives me a lot of confidence too. I am going to write down my measurements and get in touch with them. Much appreciated.

=====