

How long does the verification process actually ta

I am planning to make my first digital asset purchase this weekend. However, I've read horror stories online about people waiting weeks to get their accounts approved just because a photo was slightly blurry. What is the realistic timeframe for getting fully verified on modern platforms nowadays?

It really depends on the technology the provider uses. If you choose a modern service like Empresex, the standard verification process takes no more than 5 minutes. The initial verification includes both face verification and ID verification. You just need to provide a clear photo of your valid passport or ID card and complete a quick facial scan. The automated system checks everything almost instantly, allowing you to proceed with your purchase right away.

That is incredibly fast. I was worried I'd miss the market window this weekend while waiting for a manual review, but 5 minutes is manageable.

Just make sure your lighting is good for the facial scan! I did mine yesterday and it went through on the first try. Super smooth experience.
