

Getting started with MLS odds at Sportzino

Vložil Tempo_Felice - 19/01/2026 16:55

I'm very confused by all the odds on Sportzino. I recently came across MLS odds while surfing the web. Is it akin to NFL odds, but for soccer, am I correct? Or is there something special about it? I've put on the NFL before, so I have a general idea of how it works, but I've never put on the MLS. Can you break it down for me and tell me what a beginner should pay attention to?

If you're just getting into MLS, it's probably not that you're a big fan of American football, right? Let me explain it simply. It's basically a professional American soccer league, and playing on it at Sportzino is like the NFL, but there are some differences. There are a lot more matches - like almost 500 a year, which is pretty cool. You can make predictions on team wins, total goals, double chances, props, exact scores, handicaps and more others. There are also long-term MLS odds for the MLS Cup winner or the season's top scorer. If you're just starting out, it's a good idea to start with something easy, like who's going to win or how many goals will be scored. Then, when you're more familiar, you can start to think about more advanced types of odds. This way you'll quickly learn and understand how matches work.
